DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rau (6,741,277).

Regarding claim 1, Rau discloses a digital video signal unit 145 for generating test signals (col. 4, lines 49-53), which meets the generating section as claimed, and a testing processing unit, which meets the signal comparing section as claimed (see col. 5, line 65, to col. 6, lines 2), and a determining section (see col. 6, lines 21-67), except the noise section as claimed. In any event, the examiner takes Official Notice that using noise generator to simulate a real environment in a television receiver testing operation is well known in the art because the noise generated is able to test the true performance of the receiver. In addition, Rau teaches that other than the test pattern, additional patterns can be added to the system (see col. 8, lines 50-54). Hence, since the noise signal can be considered just another test pattern, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to include a noise generator into Rau so that the real performance of the receiver could be realized.

Regarding claim 2, the aforementioned noise generator includes a level adjuster.

Regarding claim 3, see col. 5, lines 41-45.

Regarding claim 4, see col. 5, lines 26-27, and 65-67.

Regarding claim 5, note output device 130.

Regarding claim 6, to better input the user, it would have been obvious to display different control parameters at the output device 130, such as control level of the noise generator.

Regarding claims 7-10, see corresponding rejections above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, "said analog TV signal" lacks proper antecedent basis.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Kamiyama et al. (5,260,784) shows a testing device.

Zeidler (6,734,898) shows a video quality measuring device.

Haselwood et al. (4,425,578) shows a comparator.
